Private Practice Policies

The therapy process: Your therapist's priority is to provide you with services to help you reach your goals, but please remember that your therapist cannot guarantee any particular outcome. Your therapist will work with you to develop a treatment plan and will regularly collaborate with you in discussing treatment progress. You have the right to agree or disagree with your therapist's recommendations. However, due to the varying nature and severity of problems and the individuality of each patient, your therapist is unable to predict the length of your therapy or to guarantee a specific outcome or result.

I. Confidentiality

- All communications between you and your therapist will be held in strict confidence unless you provide written permission to release information about your treatment. If you participate in marital or family therapy, your therapist will not disclose confidential information about your treatment unless all person(s) who participated in the treatment with you provide their written authorization to release.
- There are exceptions to confidentiality. For example, therapists are required to report instances of suspected child, dependent adult or elder abuse. Therapists may also be required or permitted to break confidentiality when they have determined that a patient presents a serious danger of physical violence to another person or when a patient is dangerous to him or herself. Federal, state, or local laws and judicial or administrative proceedings may require disclosure of your public health information. I may also have to use or disclose your PHI in response to a subpoena.

If you participate in marital or family therapy, your therapist will not disclose confidential information about your treatment unless all person(s) who participated in the treatment with you provide their written authorization to release such information. However, it is important that you know that your therapist utilizes a “no-secrets” policy when conducting family or marital/couples therapy. This means that if you participate in family, and/or marital/couples therapy, your therapist is permitted to use information obtained in an individual session that you may have had with him or her, when working with other members of your family. Please feel free to ask your therapist about his or her “no secrets” policy and how it may apply to you.

II. Minors and confidentiality

- Communications between therapists and patients who are minors (under the age of 18) are confidential. However, parents and other guardians who provide authorization for their child's treatment are often involved in their treatment. Consequently, your therapist, in the exercise of his or her professional judgment, may discuss the treatment progress of a minor patient with the parent or caretaker. Patients who are minors and their parents are urged to discuss any questions or concerns that they have on this topic with their therapist.

III. Records and your right to view them

- Your therapist is required to keep treatment records for at least 7 years. As a client, you have the right to review or receive a summary of your records. However, your therapist must protect your health information and your wellbeing and will use her clinical judgement in responding to requests for records.
- When more than one client is involved in treatment, such as in cases of couple and family therapy, your therapist will release records only with signed authorizations from all the adults (or all those who legally can authorize such a release) involved in the treatment. Your therapist may request up to 10 days in order to provide requested information.

IV. Appointment scheduling and cancellation policies

- Your consistent attendance greatly contributes to a successful outcome of therapy. In order to cancel or reschedule an appointment, you must notify your therapist at least 24 hours in advance of your appointment. If you do not provide your therapist with at least 24 hours' notice in advance, you are responsible for full payment and an additional $8.00 fee for the missed session. Please understand that your insurance company will not pay for missed or cancelled sessions.

V. Therapist availability/emergencies

- You are welcome to phone your therapist in between sessions. However, as a general rule, important issues are better addressed within regularly scheduled sessions.
- You may leave a message for your therapist at any time on her confidential voicemail. If you wish your therapist to return your call, please be sure to leave your name and phone number(s), along with a brief message concerning the nature of your call. Non urgent phone calls are returned during the therapist's normal workdays within 24 hours. If you have an urgent need to speak with your therapist, please indicate that fact in your message and follow any instructions that are provided by your therapist's voicemail. In the event of a medical or psychiatric emergency or an emergency involving a threat to your safety or the safety of others, please call 911 to request emergency assistance.

In the event of a medical or psychiatric emergency or an emergency involving a threat to your safety or the safety of others, please call 911 to request emergency assistance.

VI. Termination of therapy

- The length of your treatment and the timing of the eventual termination of your treatment depend on the specifics of your treatment plan and the progress you achieve. It is a good idea to plan for your termination, in collaboration with your therapist. Your therapist will discuss a plan for termination with you as you approach the completion of your treatment goals.
- You may discontinue therapy at any time. If you or your therapist determines that you are not benefiting from treatment, either of you may elect to initiate a discussion of your treatment alternatives. Treatment alternatives may include, among other possibilities, referral, changing your treatment plan, or terminating your therapy.
